Growing importance of Kazakhstan and Central Asia to the international investors and miners

- Central Asia and Kazakhstan (as the largest economy in the region) are the World’s largest frontier under-explored markets which in the near future will be contributing to the world-class mineral discoveries.
- Kazakhstan, has the world’s largest uranium and chromium reserves and substantial copper, iron ore, zinc and gold deposits. Despite its potentials, Kazakhstan receives less than 1 percent of global investment in metals exploration.
- Less than 15%* of Kazakhstan’s explored metals reserves are currently in production, official data show, with only 75 of 282 identified gold deposits and 19 of 55 iron ore deposits in operation.
- Kazakhstan offers potential investors educated work force, political stability, developed infrastructure, cheaper utilities and relatively mild climate conditions.
- Close proximity and historic trade links with China and major Asian consumers offer additional benefits to investors planning to start projects in Central Asia.
- FTSE 100 as well as listed international junior mining companies have been successfully developing projects and investing in Kazakhstan and other Central Asia states.
- Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan and other Central Asian states are presently revising more relaxed terms to international investors interested in developing Greenfield and Brownfield Mineral projects.
- Major developments which will ensure long term sustainable economic growth of the region include Silk Route trade and infrastructure development, creation of Customs Union and Eurasian Economic Union with Russia and Belarus, accession of Russia, Kyrgyzstan and Kazakhstan to the WTO.
- Kazakhstan is actively developing its Capital Markets and Stock Exchange which will create greater liquidity and provide capital for local mining IPOs.

FORUM’S MISSION

The key objective of the MINEX Central Asia forum is to facilitate better understanding of the mining needs in Kazakhstan and Central Asian States unlocking region’s extensive mineral potential.

“MINEX Central Asia” Forum agenda is driven by the international group of mining professionals with business objectives in mind

MINEX Central Asia Forum aims to:

• Create a region-wide mining industry forum aimed at promoting international trade, investment and technological cooperation in the areas of mining, mineral exploration and industrial modernisation.
• Assist with promotion of investment and business opportunities in Central Asia in specific areas e.g. mineral exploration, extraction, mineral processing, and technological modernisation.
• Stimulate knowledge exchange in the development and implementation of innovative and efficient technologies in the mining and mineral exploration.
• Enhance region’s international dialogue on harmonisation with international standards and best practices of minerals reserves/resources management.
• Assist with transfer of best practices and systems in mine management, corporate governance, social and environmental management, human resources management and technological innovation.
• Forge trust and enhance better understanding of Mining and Exploration business in Central Asia.

“MINEX Central Asia” forum is organised by an executive committee managed by Advantix Ltd and Kazakh-British Chamber of Commerce with the support of the MINEX technical committee. The technical committee consists of over 30 professionals who have outstanding experience in Central Asia’s mining and exploration sector. The committee ensures that the forum addresses the key questions important to the mining & metals professionals, investors and service providers who are exploring new business opportunities in the fast developing mineral sector in Central Asia.”
“MINEX Central Asia” is recognised as the largest and most authoritative international event on mineral prospecting, exploration and mining in Kazakhstan and Central Asia which annually brings together over 450 delegates from 200 local and international companies.

What differentiates MINEX forum is its strong connection to the mining and mineral exploration industry. The forum is steered by the MINEX Technical Committee – an international diversified group of top 30 industry experts and senior government officials which determines the forum’s objectives, structure and ensures the high quality agenda. Over the years MINEX Forums have become powerful incentive for the multilateral exchange of information and better understanding of the on-going changes in the mining industry, opening new opportunities to international investors and business partnerships.

MINEX Central Asia 2013 forum incorporates a two day conference organised on 17 and 18 April with more than 60 speaker presentations, regional investment sessions, on-site exhibition which will offer opportunities for showcasing successful mining investment projects and innovative technologies for mining, mineral exploration and mineral processing in Central Asia.

Master classes for mining professionals will be held prior to the forum on 16 April and will focus on operational on operational and management issues. Evening drinks receptions on 16 and 17 April and the Gala Dinner on 18 April will provide plenty of opportunities for networking and informal meetings.

The highlight of the MINEX Central Asia 2013 forum’s agenda will be a discussion on the recently proposed removal of the ban on issuing new subsoil use licences in Kazakhstan as well other incentives introduced by the Governments of Kyrgyzstan, Turkmenistan, Tajikistan and Mongolia designed to attract new investments in the development of mineral wealth of Central Asia. Proposed discussion is expected to bring to the forum the key senior government officials, business leaders and international investors.
Key facts about the MINEX forums

ATTENDEES: The forums attract over 450 delegates from the local and international companies creating powerful platform for business interaction and deal-making.

SPEAKERS: The forums’ three-day agenda features speaker presentations on the key aspects of mining regulation, finance, investment, mineral exploration and mining technologies offering comprehensive information to businesses and investors.

EXHIBITORS: Trade and investment exhibition organised alongside the forum offer companies excellent marketing and promotional facilities.

NETWORKING: Participation of senior business and government representatives ensures excellent opportunities for holding discussions and meetings alongside the forum’s main program.

MATCHMAKING: Sophisticated communication platform integrated into the forum’s website provides excellent match making and meeting planning tools.

DIALOGUE: The forums play active role in stimulating dialogue between the regional governments, miners and investors, helping to improve mutual understanding and speed up on-going regulatory reforms in Central Asia mining industry.

REGIONS: The forum extends an unparalleled platform to showcase new mining and mineral exploration business and investment opportunities in Central Asian region.

Business development and knowledge sharing opportunities

• Ample business networking and communication opportunities – coffee breaks, business luncheons, evening drinks receptions and Mining Excellence Gala Dinner offer extensive opportunities to exchange ideas and establish business contacts with over 500 representatives of local and international mining and exploration companies, financiers, investors, engineering companies, equipment producers, management consultants, law & audit firms and other service providers as well as government officials.

• One-on-One meeting rooms offer opportunities for organising private discussions with forum’s distinguished guests, investors or clients. Additional presentation room for up to 50 seats is available for companies who wish to organise private presentations, board meetings or media briefings.

• Online discussion platform offers registered participants opportunities for communication and exchange with the forum’s speakers, moderators and exhibitors before, during and after the forum.

• Extensive knowledge exchange – over 70 local and international speakers presenting at the forum offer extensive insight into current issues and new opportunities arising in the mining and exploration in Central Asia. State of the art post-event forum documentation published on-line, offers convenient and “always on” access to the materials which are presented at the forum. Accompanied by the video recordings of the forum’s main sessions, this unique tool offers great opportunity to revisit the forum any time and serves as great reference facility exclusively available to the forum’s participants.

• Further reach – extensive coverage by MINEX Internet TV as well as local and international TV and professional media extends forum’s reach to wider audiences in Central Asia and globally.

• Mine site visits – mining companies from Kazakhstan and other Central Asian states can further extend their business and investor communication programs by organising site visits which can be offered to the forum’s delegates, VIP guests and accredited media.
Speakers (government)

MINEX has strong ties with the Government Agencies and Policy makers in Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan and Tajikistan who are taking proactive approach in resolving issues faced by mining and exploration industry. The Forum's participants can learn about forthcoming legislation and government initiatives from the conference speakers, as well as ask direct questions regarding taxation, licencing, investment opportunities and other related issues during the Q&As sessions and one-on-one meetings with senior government officials.

PRESENT AT MINEX CENTRAL ASIA 2013

Over 70 national and international companies and experts presented at MINEX Central Asia Forum in 2012 offering their views on current mining practices, projects and regulatory developments. The forum demonstrated strong indicators of industry’s rapid recovery from the effects of the global financial crisis and illustrated new growth areas in mining exploration, mining efficiency and mining finance. According to feedback from the participants, the forum has become a powerful incentive for the multilateral exchange of information and better understanding of the on-going changes in the mining industry of the Central Asian region opening new opportunities to international investors and business partners.

MINEX Technical committee calls on national and international mining experts, analysts, investors, technological companies and government authorities to submit before 1 March 2013 abstracts to be considered for presentation at the forum.
